FACT SHEET

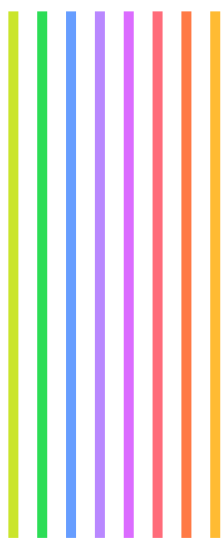

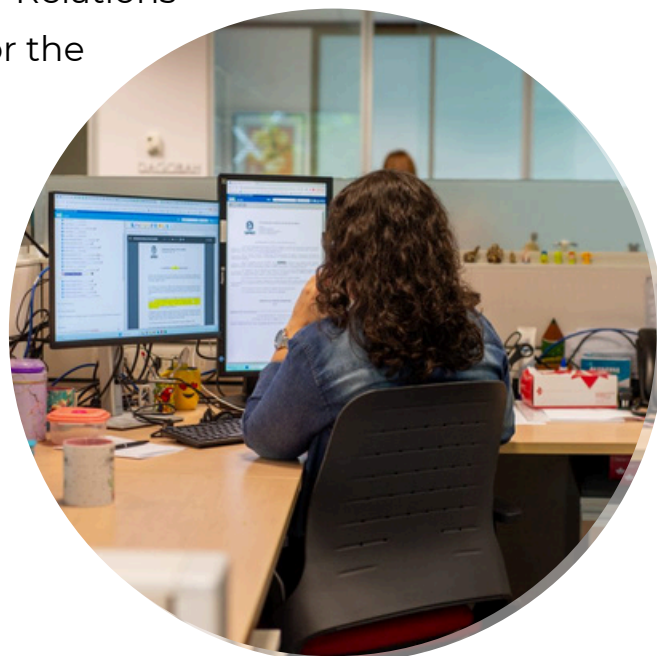

ABOUT US

The purpose of UFRJ's International Relations Office (SGRI, in Portuguese) is to work for the internationalization of the university in favor of its students, professors, and administrative staff.

As UFRJ's main mediator, SGRI creates a dialogue with academic institutions abroad, such as universities and research institutes, with government bodies, such as embassies and consulates, and also with international agencies.

In addition to creating international partnerships, SGRI also maintains a national network, which includes the Ministry of Education (MEC)/Office of Higher Education (SESu), the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, and funding agencies such as the Coordination for the Improvement of Higher Education Personnel (CAPES) and the National Council for Scientific and Technological Development (CNPq).

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS COORDINATORS AT THE SCHOOLS AND FACULTIES

UFRJ has international relations coordinators in its schools and faculties who facilitate communication with the Rector's Office. They also provide useful information to the general public and welcome members of foreign institutions that seek to enter into international cooperation agreements with UFRJ.

INTERNATIONAL PARTNERSHIPS

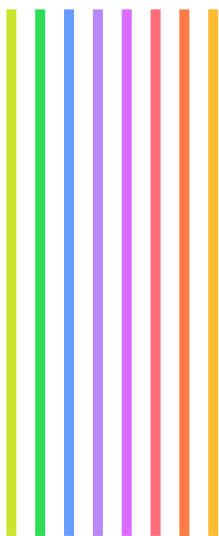

UFRJ establishes cooperation agreements and other types of partnerships with hundreds of foreign higher education institutions. The signed agreements inform, among other things, the rights and duties of students who intend to exchange.

Although the terms of cooperation agreements vary from one university to another, they generally ensure that UFRJ students:

- receive a student visa in their passport, which allows them to enroll in a foreign university and stay abroad for the necessary period;
- do not pay tuition fees at the foreign university;
- take advantage, at UFRJ, of the credits obtained at the foreign university.
