International Master Program in Global Finance

IMF

International Innovative Professional Program at the College of Management at National Chung Cheng University

In response to the demand for international banking and finance talents in Asia and in order to cultivate such future talents, the courses are conducted fully in English by 20 cross-department faculty members of the college who have both practical banking and finance background. Emphasis is placed on the ability to integrate interdisciplinary knowledge in financial banking, business administration, accounting, information, information management, finance and banking laws along with theory and practice of global banking market. The goal is to nurture high-level professional financial and banking managers.

Curriculum features

1. Multi-faceted engagement into finance and banking

Classes are conducted in English with diverse contents that cover interdisciplinary professional capabilities, investment and management of professional organization, language communication capability, and global viewpoints to cultivate financial and banking professionals with varied viewpoints.

2. Internship opportunity to fortify practical experience

During the summer, we cooperate with the four major domestic accounting firms, banking institutions, and governmental financial supervisory agency to offer internship opportunities in order to enhance the students' practical competitiveness and communication competency in the market.

3. Immersion of international views into daily life

In addition to domestic student, international student are recruited as well. The students can advance their strength in international financial market from the daily learning process through international exchange of different views.

Recruitment subjects

We recruit domestic and international students who are interested in Asia-Pacific finance and trade with a bachelor degree in business administration from schools approved by the Ministry of Education (or certificate of education equivalency). After the application and selection processes, the accepted students can register to start their education.
